

HEADQUARTERS,
1ST GUARDS BRIGADE,
M.E.L.F.

Sgt Stringer has served under me for the past six months as my transport sergeant.

He is a man of wide general experience within the army and has a variety of specialised knowledge in such branches as signals and motor-transport. He is a skilful tradesman, a smart and well-disciplined soldier, who is a credit to his regiment and the army.

I have always found him to be a thoroughly good-natured and helpful colleague whose sense of humour rarely allows him to become downhearted. He took over in this unit an extremely difficult post and filled it admirably. He was always reliable, cool, efficient and generously helpful. He was always a fair and just non-commissioned officer and was always a great deal of help to the troops he commanded. His leaving the army has constituted a great loss to me personally and to the smooth-running and reorganisation of the headquarters. I can without reservation recommend him for any work which requires co-operation with others, honesty, a sense of humour, good manners and efficiency. He should, about any sort of work, prove himself first-rate.
